Greater Washington Partnership Announces Three Leading Capital Region CEOs Join its Board of Directors

Carmine Di Sibio, Global Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of EY; Robert Moser, President and Chief Executive Officer of Clark Construction Group; and Joe Ucuzoglu, Chief Executive Officer of Deloitte US are newest leaders elected to Partnership Board

— Washington, D.C.—The Greater Washington Partnership announced today that three Capital Region leaders will be joining its Board of Directors: Carmine Di Sibio, Global Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of EY; Robert Moser, President and Chief Executive Officer of Clark Construction Group; and Joe Ucuzoglu, Chief Executive Officer of Deloitte US. All three chief executives bring a long and successful track record running some of the most dynamic and accomplished businesses in the Capital Region to the Partnership.

"I am thrilled to have Carmine, Robby and Joe join the Partnership Board and am confident they will each provide valuable leadership and perspectives during this pivotal time for our nation and the region," said Russ Ramsey, Chairman of the Greater Washington Partnership. "The addition of these three accomplished business leaders complements our Board's expertise and experiences, and I look forward to working with them to continue to grow and build momentum for our initiatives."

Carmine Di Sibio currently serves as the Global Chairman and CEO of EY, one of the largest professional services organizations in the world with over 280,000 people in more than 150 countries. Prior to becoming Global Chairman and CEO, he served as EY Global Managing Partner – Client Service, leading the execution of EY's global strategy and its four geographical areas and four service lines. Carmine joined EY in 1985 and has served as an Advisory and Assurance partner for many of EY's largest financial services accounts. He has held several leadership positions at EY, including Chair of the Global Financial Services Markets Executive and Regional Managing Partner for the Americas Financial Services Organization (FSO), where he started EY Risk Management and Regulatory Services. He also co-chairs the EY Global Diversity and Inclusiveness Steering Committee, which works to maximize the power of different opinions, perspectives, and cultural references within the organization. Carmine is originally from Italy and emigrated with his family to the United States when he was three years old. He was the first in his family to graduate from college, earning a BA in Chemistry from Colgate University, and an MBA from New York University's Stern School of Business.

"I am honored to join the Board and to continue EY's role supporting the Greater Washington Partnership. The pandemic is accelerating trends that were already reshaping the future of work, particularly for underserved communities and other vulnerable segments of the population. The work of the Greater Washington Partnership is important to make sure the region is a great place for all to thrive," said Di Sibio. "EY's purpose is to Build a Better Working World – in this transformative age, it is even more critical for the business community to build strong foundations, embrace inclusion, innovate and be the catalyst for change."

Robby Moser is the President and CEO of Clark Construction Group, LLC. Robby sets the company's strategic priorities and provides executive direction for the company and its subsidiaries, which total $5 billion in revenue per year. Throughout his 20-year tenure, Robby has spearheaded the delivery of monumental and critical assets and led the diversification of Clark's product lines and services which range from real estate development to technology integration to facility operation and maintenance. With a team of more than 4,200 people, Robby fosters a company culture that promotes innovation, integrity, and community involvement. Under his leadership, Clark has delivered projects that help define the local and national landscape including the National Museum of African American History and Culture, Salesforce Tower, Chase Center, The Dwight D. Eisenhower Memorial, and CSX Virginia Avenue Tunnel. He earned his Bachelor of Science in civil engineering from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. An active member of various industry organizations, Robby also serves on several non-profit boards.

"At Clark, we are passionate about making a lasting difference in the communities we serve," said Moser. "I look forward to working with my colleagues at the Greater Washington Partnership to strengthen the Capital Region through development and innovation."

Joe Ucuzoglu is the Chief Executive Officer of Deloitte US, leading the largest professional services organization in the United States. Deloitte provides audit and assurance, tax, consulting, and risk and financial advisory services to a broad cross-section of the largest corporations and governmental agencies. In addition to the Greater Washington Partnership, Joe serves on the board of directors of the US Chamber of Commerce and the Partnership for New York City, the governing board of the Center for Audit Quality, and the executive committee of University of Southern California's SEC and Financial
